GroundWorks DanceTheater: Celebrating Connection through nextSPACE Fall 2020

CLEVELAND, Ohio - GroundWorks DanceTheater launches nextSPACE Fall 2020, a continuation of our summer series. The fall series will feature activities in both live and virtual spaces around Northeast Ohio. “nextSpace evolved out of a series of questions about how GroundWorks might re-center our work and share space with others in many different ways online, in person, and always in our imaginations.” – says David Shimotakahara, Executive Artistic Director, about the inspiration for this new program.

nextSPACE Fall 2020 will run from October 5 - November 1.

We invite the community to journey, connect, react, and experience with GroundWorks as we celebrate the importance of connections and relationships with our community and community partners. We are excited to deepen these relationships through our virtual Happy Hour Artist Talks, Movement Classes, and Drive-In Dance Film Screenings.

Our wonderful community partners for our nextSPACE Fall 2020 are:

- Downtown Akron Partnership
- Dunham Tavern Museum
- Eighty-Three Brewery
- Free Akron Outdoor Movies
- Graffiti HeArt
- Ingenuity Cleveland
- LAND Studios
- MidTown Cleveland
- The National Center for Choreography in Akron

GroundWorks has carefully planned all nextSPACE Fall 2020 programing to ensure the safety of all participants in strict adherence with CDC and local health authority guidelines.

K-12 Classes

GroundWorks artists will lead K-12 students to explore connection, creativity, and spatial awareness through “live” virtual creative movement games and activities during a school-based online class. This workshop is perfect for non-movers to help center their brains and bodies before or after a long day of virtual learning. Students may be attending virtually, but will still be asked to move and participate fully, including working in partners, small groups, and independently to explore and have fun!

This workshop welcomes beginners, non-dancers, and movement enthusiasts looking to make new connections and flex their physical and creative muscles! Participants will be eased into and guided through a warm up called Brain Dance, strategically created for non-dancers to center their brains and bodies for physical activity and centering concentration. Following Brain Dance, participants can expect to work in a virtual setting alone, in partners, and in small groups to explore tools for uncovering movement possibilities and patterns built from their personal preferences and experiences. Class will conclude with a group discussion and reflection following a brief return to individual body and breath.

*This class is not open for general registration. To learn about how to bring this program to your or your child’s classroom, contact Education and Community Engagement Coordinator Rebecca Burcher at Rebecca@groundworksdance.org
